My philosophy is to live life to the fullest, because life's too short to walk the same cautious path as everyone else. Since I began skydiving I have met so many wonderful people. This is a unique sport that bridges gender, age, race, and occupation. With participation on the decline, current skydivers need to give back to the sport and encourage new jumpers.

I received my coach rating in 2007, and since then have truly enjoyed working with students in their progression, skills camps, and ground schools. John Lyman, my husband Keith, and I also reinstated monthly skills camps in November 2007 and have had over 50 camp participants. My husband and I have earned the nickname The Flying Majeroni's and organize at Carolina Sky Sports boogies mainly for newer jumpers and anyone else who wants to come along! ☺ We also organize tunnel camps for newer jumpers and offer free RW coaching.

I have competed regularly in the Carolina Skydiving League since 2005. I enjoy the competitive side, the first rate coaching by Carolina Ice, and the Golden Knights, and reuniting with so many friends at the local Carolina dropzones. My goals in skydiving include securing my AFF rating, organizing, and offering skills camps to other local dropzones.
