

Displaced I 1995 Double slide projection digitally altered photographs / 35 mm slides

One of a series of works made as interventions in particular exhibition spaces, where an event would be enacted and documented, or some physical attribute of the space would be altered or manipulated.

The two 35 mm slides were projected onto two adjacent walls at the corner of a room. The scale of the projection was calculated so that the figures in the images would be life-size.

The original photographs were made in the same location as the projected installation. Text was added digitally and the slides were produced on a digital printer. Colour was removed from the images apart from the skin tones of the seated figure and the red flowers on the table.
